Aim of the course	The course enables students to develop a body of work, investigating a strong underlying visual idea in drawing that grows out of a coherent plan of action or investigation. The course helps develop understanding of primary concepts which relate to drawing from nature.
Prerequisites	Entrance exams are required for admission. Art studio seminar; students acquire the basic knowledge of drawing and a general knowledge of art history.
Learning outcomes:
– knowledge	- The student learns free hand perspective drawing and landscape sketching - The student recognizes the diversity of functions of the medium of drawing and its multiple application - The student gains knowledge of the basic drawing skills
– skills	- The student knowingly uses drawing techniques and methods of work - The student can analyse objects and figures - The student is able to apply the acquired knowledge to practice
– personal and social competence	- The student acquires the ability to interpret drawings - The student can communicate their message / statement through their work - The student is able to work in a group
Course content	The coursework follows a sequence of studies that introduce basic drawing techniques, media, and composition through observation and analysis of natural and manufactured forms, an integral process of educating the eye to see – contour, proportion, chiaroscuro, modelling and, ultimately, colour. The course consists of: Figure study - students draw/paint a model, solving the problem of figurative composition. Landscape study (sketches, notes, study from nature) - students deal with the problems of colour, space, and light. Still life - students practice the conscious arrangement of composition elements in a picture in order to achieve rhythm, symmetry and composition. They use contrasting colours and complementary colours, taking into consideration colour relativism.
